“Karen was more than a source of love & humor — she was a beacon of strength and inspiration. She faced life’s challenges with grace, turning obstacles into lessons and moments into opportunities to uplift others. Her kindness was not passive; it was powerful, intentional, and transformative.

She showed us that true strength is found in compassion, that generosity is a form of courage, and that even the smallest acts of care can leave the deepest marks on people’s hearts. Her life was a reminder that we can all choose to be a source of light, no matter how dark the path may seem.

Her legacy lives on in you — in your determination, your empathy, and your ability to inspire those around you. Though she is no longer here in person, her spirit continues to guide, encourage, and empower.

May her memory not only comfort you but also fuel your drive to live with the same courage, kindness, and purpose she embodied every day
