“ Dear Bindu and family,
I am so sorry to learn of Narendra's passing. I had the pleasure of working with him for several years at The Hartford. When I needed info from him I could usually find him laughing and joking with his colleagues. He had a very calm demeanor. When writing a paper for school, he suggested I write about Durga. So Durga it was. I learned so much from him. He was always willing to go the extra step to ensure everyone and everything was okay. He will truly be missed. You are in my thoughts and prayers during this most difficult time,

My condolences,
Barb Leitao

“ Narenda was truly an extraordinary soul. He genuinely cared about others and brought kindness and sincerity into every interaction. As a colleague, he was both straightforward and respectful—someone you could always count on for honesty and integrity.

Though I only had the privilege of knowing him for a few years, I'm deeply heartbroken by his passing. I will miss his giggle and his smile. He touched so many lives, and his absence is profoundly felt. It's a tremendous loss, and he will be dearly missed.

My thoughts go out to his family.

“ I was one of many who had the chance to work with Narendra: led by him, mentored by him, challenged by him, and befriended by him in his own very special way. I can't think of a more fitting tribute than planting a tree - seeds to grow and branch out in different directions while making the Earth and things around it a better place because it was here. Gone but never forgotten. His spirit will live on through the countless number of lives that he touched.

“ Although I only had a short time working with Narendra, it left a lasting impression. He had a way of making time for everyone, no matter how busy things got, and that meant a lot.

We're heartbroken to say goodbye to him. Narendra was more than just a leader; he was someone you could truly count on. Calm, thoughtful, and steady.

People didn't just respect Narendra for what he did, they admired him for who he was. He led with humility, integrity, and grace. He never needed to be the loudest voice in the room; his actions spoke for him, and they spoke volumes.

He made a real impact on so many of us, both professionally and personally. We'll miss him deeply, but the example he set, his kindness, wisdom, and steady presence, will stay with us.

“ Narendra, Your wisdom, positivity and humility has left a long lasting impression on every one with who you interacted with. You inspired me to look at the future in a way that I would have never looked and planned. Your thinking and mentorship of finding and focusing on solution instead of problem was the best advise I heard and will always strive to focus on that. Truly heartbroken to hear your passing. You will be missed.

“ I still can't believe that you are gone, Rajanna. It feels unreal. I have so many wonderful memories with you that I will cherish forever.

I still remember the first time I met you, 18 years ago, when you came to set up Ranjeeth's room at UIS. I was amazed that you had taken time off for weeks just to make sure he was settled comfortably in college. You took him to so many places during those early days in the U.S., and I still recall how Ranjeeth used to laugh (and sometimes complain) about your obsession with taking photographs.

Back then, Ranjeeth and our group of friends used to do all sorts of crazy things — like driving in the middle of the night from Springfield to St. Louis just to eat biryani. You used to scold us when you found out, especially when you couldn't reach Ranjeeth and ended up calling me instead. We somehow managed to keep our little adventures a secret from you, but you always found a way to know!

There was never a single day when Ranjeeth didn't mention your name. You were such a big part of his life — his mentor, his best friend, and his greatest strength. I still remember when Ranjeeth and I visited Connecticut after your marriage, and we teased each other about Bindu akka being from my hometown, Bhimavaram.

You were always the most protective brother — I will never forget the time you called us while we were driving from Chicago to UIS during a heavy snowstorm. You scolded us, booked a hotel for us to stop and rest, and made sure we were safe before you hung up. That was who you were — always looking out for everyone around you.

I was lucky to meet you again in Raleigh — at the yoga place with Prakash anna, and later at your home after Ranjeeth's marriage. I deeply regret that I couldn't see you one last time before traveling to India in May.

Rajanna, I admired your calm and composed nature — how you always took everything easy, no matter the situation. You often told us, “Don’t worry, guys. I’m here — take it easy.” That reassurance meant the world to us.

I’ll always remember our golfing days — you, Ranjeeth, and Prakash anna. Those were such good times. I could keep writing endlessly about all the moments we shared.

To me, you and Ranjeeth were one and the same — inseparable in every way. I can’t imagine him without you. We all miss you deeply, anna. I pray that God gives your family the strength to bear this unimaginable loss.

You will always be remembered with love, admiration, and gratitude

“Narendra, you were a friend and mentor above all...genuinely interested in both my personal life and professional journey. We spoke just a couple of days before your passing and planned to discuss the next steps in your broader vision for the company. That was who you were. Always thinking ahead, always striving to do better.

When my son was born, you told me something I'll never forget: "I know there are 8 billion people on the planet, but every life is special." That reflected your empathy and humanity perfectly.

You brought calm and clarity to every situation, guiding those around you with wisdom and grace. Your kindness and sincerity will always be remembered.

May your light continue to inspire everyone whose life you touched.

“ I have always admired and respected Narendra for his calm demeanor, intelligence, and remarkable ability to remember even the smallest details of the numerous tasks he was involved in. Beyond his professional excellence, his humane nature stood out—he always respected and supported his colleagues, especially when he noticed or sensed any personal challenges they were facing. You will always be fondly remembered, holding a special place as someone who truly deserved immense respect and admiration. May you be in peace in your new abode.

“ I was deeply saddened to hear of Narendra's passing. Though my interactions with him were few, they left a lasting impression. He carried himself with quiet intelligence and thoughtful grace, qualities that spoke volumes even in brief moments. It was clear Narendra was a man of depth, insight, and kindness.

Please accept my sincere condolences. I hope you find comfort in the memories you shared and in knowing how many lives he touched, even in passing encounters.

“ Narendra emanated a warmth that can only be achieved by someone who lived as genuinely and empathetically as he did. The impact his passing has had on me despite not having known him long is a testament to that. His calm clarity and soft-spoken nature commanded a respect that showed extreme emotional intelligence and will be something I will always admire and strive to take with me. You'll be greatly missed as a mentor and more importantly, as a person.

“ You will be missed, my friend!

You were my mentor at Brighthouse and took a chance on hiring me as your Director of IAM. You gave me the most amazing advice that I will never forget—wisdom that I still carry and use every day.

You once told me: “Be comfortable being uncomfortable” and “Be agnostic of the software and learn the business.” Those words have shaped my entire career, and I owe so much to you for sharing them with me.

You will truly be missed. Godspeed, my friend.

“ Narendra touched far more lives in a positive way than I think he may have realized. If I were to use one word to describe Narendra, I would say "transformative". He will be missed but remembered fondly by so many for a very long time.

“ Your absence will be deeply felt. You brought not only leadership and vision, but also a genuine sense of care, mentorship, and integrity that made working with you truly meaningful. I'll miss your guidance, your steady presence, and the way you inspired those around you to be their best. You always made time for our weekly meetings, no matter how busy things got, and you never failed to remind me how much you appreciated my work. That meant a lot to me.
